The man then got out of the scene and a police investigation commenced. The alleged offender was arrested at Fairfield Police Station last night around 8.30pm and charged with offence and being armed with intent to commit an indictable offence.

In旁 of the incident, the shattering man is seen pacing along the road, screaming chainsaw.

"I've never seen that. I've only seen this in movies," claims John Molit and NSW Police.

The victim then begins to see breaking traffic, while pushing one off side street and another crosses lane and hits right.

A black car stops to let the other through but the car behind stops and the man jumps out and sprint towards the loop before the alleged attack was carried out.

All four lanes of traffic are at a standstill as the pair allegedly punch and kick each other. A bystander almost gets run over by one moving vehicle as he joins the fight.

Another bystander intervenes and the two tackle the man to the ground.

"After that, they let him loose and he walked back to his car. We thought everything was done," Mr Molit said.

But it was far from done.

The man stands up, walks to the black car and pulls out the chainsaw before embarking on his terror rampage.

The alleged offender was granted conditional bail and is set to appear at Fairfield Local Court on May 7.
